The meeting then adjourned to the call of the president.

Berlin's latest discovery is of a rather tragic order. In the cellars of a structure occupied by a Prussian ministry, a human skeleton has been found. How long the bones have lain there no one knows; but there is no ground for evolving a state secret of mystery. The condition and situation of the remains, indicate that the skeleton, or body which it represents, was purposely concealed in the gloomy recesses where it was discovered.
